

1975 General Land Use Plan for the City of Boston. This map is the graphic representation of all major land use policies and recommendations set forth in the 1965/1975 General Plan for the City of Boston and the Regional Core. Since the Plan is a general statement of long-range development goals, this map should also be viewed as a flexible guide rather than as an unalterable commitment to new land use development over the next decade. In this capacity, it will play an indispensable part in the satisfaction of statutory requirements for comprehensive long-range standards for redevelopment projects and zoning amendments and variances (see Chapter I). For comparison with the Existing Land Use Map, see Figure IV.3. Policies underlying the projected land use changes are summarized in Chapter IV.
